I. General Course Data

Course Name : Leadership: Theories and Perspectives
Requirement : Teorias Psicodinámicas
Credits : 3

Code : 07507
Semester : 2018-2

II. Course Outline

'Leadership: Theories and Perspectives' is the first elective course of the Leadership Concentration that develops understanding, application and development of this competence, as it is permanently required in professional performance. Specifically, it extends and deepens the study of the concept of leadership and directive styles from different theoretical perspectives, therefore explaining the emergence of abilities and conditions in which this influence process is exerted, particularly in organizations.

The actual exercise of leadership is examined starting from its anthropological origins. The concepts of ethics and trust are examined as well. These and the previous elements will enable the student to analyze internationally well known leaders, from active, critical and constructive standpoints.

III. Course Objective

Develop in students active, critical and constructive analytical abilities towards leading characters' performance, through the acknowledgement and understanding of diverse theories and perspectives of leadership.

IV. Learning Outcomes

At course completion, the student will acquire the following competencies:

Analyze the concept of leadership from multivariate perspectives and define common grounds for the construction of authentic Leadership.

Identify and understand recurrent topics of leadership such as gender, power management, trust, paradoxes, personal mastery learning, among others.

Evaluate leaders' life events and accomplishments in order to determine correspondence to the concept of authentic leadership.

Acknowledge and understand the process of Leadership implemented in organizational settings, particularly in management and team formation, structure and design of organizations and the generation of values.

Carry out reflective understanding of the cultural, moral and ethical aspects of the Leadership phenomenon in diverse contexts.

VI. Methodology

This course covers a wide variety of topics concerning the concept of Leadership. It consists of two units. The first covers a conceptual introduction to the problem of leadership, and the second deals with a set of possible real life applications of such concepts.

Although related to each other, each topic is treated independently in the class sessions. Therefore, the course acquires a Seminar character, in which discussions converge towards a common and reflective understanding of this subject matter.

Students are therefore required to prepare in advance for each class. In a group setting, they will prepare selected readings randomly assigned. They will then deliver weekly presentations to the rest of the students, to ignite discussion and produce general agreements at the end of each class period.

There will be other activities that will serve as examples or applications of the concepts discussed in class. Such activities include group dynamic exercises, video or movie analyses, article discussions, selected readings, among others.

During the term, students, in groups, are also required to prepare a Leadership Performance Evaluation (LPE) in writing (see LPE GROUP PROJECT OUTLINE), which they will present to the class orally, in the last two weeks of the program. This project is threefold: First it contains a biography of a famous leading character. Second a commented list of accomplishments is prepared. Finally, an evaluation is carried out to establish if this character can actually be acknowledged as an authentic leader.

Students must participate actively and, therefore, attendance is mandatory.

VII. Evaluation

The course considers an accumulative and integrated evaluation, with the following criteria:

There will be a Mid-Term Exam (MT), a Final Exam (FE) and a Permanent Evaluation Average (PEA), to produce a student's Final Average (FA). The first two grades are the scores obtained in examinations administered in weeks 8 and 16 of the course. The third grade (PEA) is composed of five partial grades. These are: The Reading Control Average (4 Reading Controls), Graded Assignment Average (2 graded Assignments), Weekly Class Oral Presentation Average, Leadership Performance Evaluation Paper and the Final Oral Presentation. None of these grades will be cancelled nor substituted. The percentages and proportions are explained in the following table.

|                   | MID-TERM EXAM (MT) | FINAL EXAM (FE) | PERMANENT EVALUATION AVERAGE (PEA)                        |
|-------------------|---------------------------|------------------------|--|
| PERCENTAGE | 25%                | 30%             | 45%   |
| CONTENTS   | TOPICS FROM WEEKS 1-7     | TOPICS FROM WEEKS 9-13 | READING CONTROL AVERAGE20%                                   |
|                   |                           |                        | GRADED ASSIGNMENT AVERAGE20%                                 |
|                   |                           |                        | LEADERSHIP PERFORMANCE EVALUATION (FINAL PAPER)20%           |
|                   |                           |                        | WEEKLY TOPIC ORAL PRESENTATION AVERAGE20%                    |
|                   |                           |                        | FINAL LEADERSHIP PERFORMANCE EVALUATION ORAL PRESENTATION20% |

The final average (FA) is obtained with the following formula:

$$\mathbf{FA} = (0,25 \times \mathbf{MT}) + (0,45 \times \mathbf{PEA}) + (0,30 \times \mathbf{FE})$$

FA = Final Average

MT = Mid-Term Exam

PEA = Permanent Evaluation Average

FE = Final Exam
